Arcane announces agreement with Nexo to provide research services

Arcane Research, a division of Arcane Crypto, today announced a research agreement with Nexo, one of the world's leading digital asset institutions. Arcane Research will produce research for both of Nexo's client groups - retail and premium – and distribute the crypto research on a weekly basis.

“Our mission at Nexo is to elevate the client experience and to continuously add value for our clients and community,” said Troy Gravitt, Head of Communications at Nexo and adds “A key part of doing that is giving our clients the market information, insights, and analysis they need to make informed decisions and to achieve success on their own terms. Our partnership with Arcane Research gives us the flexibility to offer clients best-in-the-business market analysis while continuing to rapidly scale our core business and operations. In addition to the new content for Nexo retail customers, we’ll be working with Arcane to produce market research for Nexo Prime clients that rivals the caliber, sophistication, and feel of the best available sell-side research found anywhere in traditional finance.”

“We’re excited to announce this partnership, helping Nexo with their content and research needs, and giving Nexo’s clients the confidence to trust digital assets and stay updated on developments in the market,” said Bendik Norheim Schei, Head of Research at Arcane.
